Field of the Invention The present invention generally relates to a hinge assembly, and more particularly, to a hinge assembly for a mobile device. 2. Description of Related Art Following the development of the mobile industry, mobile devices, such as notebook computers, mobile phones, PDAs, have become indispensable daily tools for people's communication and business life. Since it is so versatile and convenient to carry, a mobile device is very much portable. In addition, a keyboard, which is a key input device of a conventional mobile device, is no longer necessary in most mobile devices. Under this circumstance, some mobile devices have no keyboard input device, e.g. touch screens. As the touch screen has been extensively adopted in recent years, it is more and more frequently used in mobile devices. However, owing to the smaller size of a touch screen, the size of the projected area from a mobile device to the touch screen is limited and is not sufficient for touch operations. Currently, the most widely applied solution is to put the mobile device on the corner of a desk to facilitate the user conducting touch operations with the touch screen located thereat.[S-1/MMC/oxaliplatin and S-1/CDDP combination therapy in the treatment of gastric cancer]. S-1, an oral fluoropyrimidine, shows a synergistic antitumor effect in combination with cisplatin (CDDP). We evaluated the safety and effectiveness of S-1 combined with oxaliplatin (MMC) and S-1 combined with CDDP as treatment for patients with metastatic or unresectable gastric carcinoma. Thirty-seven patients with metastatic or unresectable gastric carcinoma were enrolled in this study. Oral S-1 was administered for two weeks followed by 2 weeks of rest, and treatment was repeated for six courses. Oxaliplatin was administered at 100 mg/m(2) for 1 h on day 1. MMC was administered at 50 mg/m(2) as a 2-h continuous infusion. Each course was followed by a 14-day rest. CDDP was administered at
